

GEI Consultants Again Ranked in Top 500 by Engineering News-Record

Rises 57 positions to 213 on national list featuring largest design firms

BOSTON, Mass. – July 29, 2008 – GEI Consultants, Inc. announced today it has again been ranked within the Top 500 design firms by Engineering News-Record (ENR) magazine. The company was ranked 213th in the publication's recent survey, rising 57 spots from its 2007 position.

"As a privately-held, national firm, we focus our business efforts on providing professional services of exceptional value to our clients," said Frank Leathers, president and chairman of GEI. "The company's commitment to client service and technical expertise has allowed us to develop many long-term client relationships and to win assignments from many new clients. We are particularly pleased to advance 57 positions to the 213th rank as a result of our 30 percent organic growth during 2007. Due in large part to our company values and the quality of our people, GEI has been equally successful in attracting new work, and in attracting new talent, at all experience levels."

ENR ranks the Top 500 firms based on total dollars billed during the previous year. The surveys are sent to several thousand engineering and design firms who may be of sufficient size in the commercial markets. GEI has been participating in this survey for over 15 years.

In addition to ranking #213 on the Top 500 Design Firms, GEI Consultants was included on the following ENR lists:

- Top 10 Dam and Reservoir Firms (#10)
- Top 25 Fossil Fuel Firms (#21)
- Top 200 Environmental Firms (#182)
